

Attachment-Based Model of “Parental Alienation” Component Pathology

(Attachment Trauma Reenactment Pathology)

(Splitting Pathology in a Cross-Generational Coalition)

C. A. Childress (2015)<sup>1</sup>

I Disagree With	This Type of Pathology Exists
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Cross-generational coalition
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Narcissistic/borderline personality pathology
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The pathology of splitting
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The pathology of projection
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The psychological decompensation of narcissistic/borderline personalities into delusional beliefs under stress
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Role-reversal relationships
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The attachment system
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Internal working models of attachment (schemas)
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Attachment trauma (disorganized attachment)
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The association of childhood attachment trauma to the formation of narcissistic and borderline personality traits
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The reenactment of attachment trauma patterns
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The misattribution of anxiety
<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	The misunderstanding of a grief response

---

<sup>1</sup> Childress, C.A. (2015). An Attachment-Based Model of Parental Alienation: Foundations. Claremont, CA: Oaksong Press